Weekend storm leads to power outages

Weekend storms left about 267 West Sacramento customers without power on Sunday for about an hour, said PG & E.

Wind and rain caused the damage to power lines, the utility reported, and workers were waiting to respond to any additional difficulties as storms continue to pass through Northern California.

In Davis, 29 customers lost power for 41 minutes and additional 248 customers lost their electricity for several hours, while in Knights Landing (north of Woodland) 393 customers went without power for two hours.

Now that Christmas is over, where do you take that tree?

It's January already!

So what do you do with that Christmas tree, which has now served its purpose?

The easiest thing to do is put it out into the street, in sections no more than four feet long, for waste collection.

But to save landfill space, a better option is to recycle your tree into mulch for local plantings. To do this, drop your tree off (no tinsel please) at Riverside Christmas Tree Farms, 1290 Linden Rd., at any hour of the day through Jan. 12.

To reach the tree farm, go south on Jefferson Blvd. from the freeway into the "Southport" area, then turn east (left) on Linden Road. The tree farm is on the left.

Well, it's not a plane and it's not Superman —

A handful of West Sacramento residents helped count birds Dec. 21 as part of the annual Sacramento Audubon Society bird count. The tradition started in the Sacramento area in 1950.

Birders met in the morning and spent the day in questionable weather tallying every single bird seen, by type and quantity.

Participant Margaret Crawford reported that the count was down this year, perhaps due to damp weather.

"We had 41 species here and the people out on the bypass counted 91 species," said Crawford. "They had a surf scooter in the bypass and a Swainson's Hawk that had not gone south."

Timing was important to pay raise vote, says supervisor

■ Timing of pay raise partly served to protect new board members from having to deal with it, says local supervisor

By Steve Marschke

Yolo County Supervisor Mike McGowan, who represents most of West Sacramento on the board of supervisors, said that in a recent interview that he pushed for a vote on a pay raise for the supervisors earlier this month because the timing offered a window of opportunity.

To have brought it up sooner, said McGowan, would have put former supervisor Helen Thomson, a Democrat, in the political hot spot of voting for a supervisorial pay raise of $10,000 per year while she was running against a Republican, Ed Schlenker, in the 8th district state assembly race. The issue could have been used against her, said McGowan.

Thomson eventually won the assembly race and stepped down from the county board of supervisors.

Mike McGowan
Supervisor, 1st Dist.

"I was not about to complicate her election because it would have had an impact on her election and I support Helen," said McGowan, another Democrat.

During the same campaign season, McGowan was running unopposed for his supervisorial seat.

To have postponed the vote until the new supervisors were seated in January, he added, "would really not be fair. . . I don't think the new board would deal with this."

So the result was a vote in which McGowan joined supervisors Frank Sieferman and Betsy Marchand, who were stepping down from office, in voting for the pay raise. Thomson supported it until she left office for the State Assembly, but was not present for the final vote. Supervisor Tom Stallard of Woodland abstained on the pay raise vote.

McGowan and county staff had provided results of surveys showing the pay raise, which took supervisors' base salaries from about $18,000 to about $28,000 per year, was needed and justified. Additional benefits and perks add around $15,000 to their compensation package.

Their old pay rates placed them at about 66 percent below the compensation of other rural counties, they said, making it tough for people to be able to afford to serve. McGowan said he hasn't operated his law practice in three years because of the needs of the supervisor's position.

"There probably was a time when it took less than 40 hours per week to do this job, but that time is long past," he said. "I haven't practiced law in three years and I don't see how I could."

The judgment that Yolo's supervisors were paid so much less than their counterparts in other rural and agricultural counties came after a "benchmark" survey was taken comparing the compensation of all Yolo County's employees to those of similar counties.

"I'm the one that asked that this information and issue come to the board. We did a compensation survey and job analysis for every job in the county, including the supervisors," said McGowan. "We were having some turnover problems in different departments, and it's been going on for several years. We found some categories significantly below benchmark. And one of the things we were reminded of in the study was the board of supervisors were the furthest out of that range. We were 66 percent below benchmark."

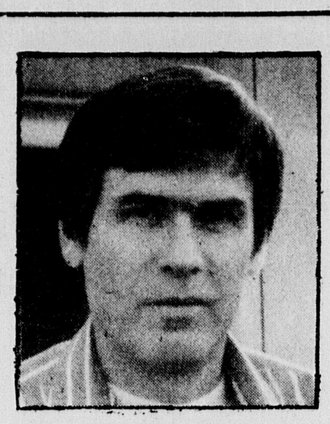

McGowan said that the supervisors then made a commitment to bring all of the county's employees to within ten percent of "benchmark" for similar counties, beginning with the supervisors, who showed the greatest pay disparity.

Fellow supervisor Frank Sieferman, who was ending his term, even made that a condition of his support for the supervisors' pay raise, he added.

Ignoring Christmas & the evolution of the female body

My Back Pages

By Daryl Fisher

I have a work friend who doesn't think too highly of the Christmas holidays. "It's become much too commercialized," she told me not long ago, "and a few years back, I just decided that enough was enough. I was sick of slaving away making Christmas cookies and spending countless hours in crowded shopping malls picking out gifts that just got returned anyway. Plus it was really starting to cause problems for me and my husband."

"Christmas?" I asked, wondering how my favorite holiday could possibly be detrimental to a marriage.

"You see," she explained, "most men just don't realize how much time and effort goes into making Christmas the merry old time it is. They don't have to do the shopping, the cooking, the Christmas cards, the thank you notes, nothing. Most of them just sit around drinking eggnog and watching football games. You're not like that, are you?"

"Of course not," I lied.

"Well, I'm afraid my husband is, and we used to have these really big fights about it all the time. When we started throwing Christmas ornaments at each other a few years ago, I knew we had to do something."

"So, what did you do?"

"Well," she said matter-of-factly, "now that the kids are all grown, my husband and I just don't do Christmas anymore."

"You're kidding?"

"Nope. No more lighted reindeer on the roof, no outrageously expensive Christmas tree to keep watered, no relatives to push out the door as quickly as possible, nothing."

"Really? You completely ignore Christmas?"

"That's right. Except for going to church of course. You ought to try it. It's heaven."

"But I don't think I've ever heard of someone ignoring Christmas," I said.

"We even leave town. In fact, this year we've decided to go on a cruise. Have you ever been on a cruise?"

"No, I haven't," I admitted.

"Well, we're really looking forward to it," she said with excitement in her eyes. "I hear they're great fun."

"I'm sure they are," I said, "but I have been told that you have to be very careful about what you eat when you go on one of those things."

"Really? Why is that?"

"Because I guess they never stop serving you food. You can eat full-course meals five times a day if you want -- and I'm talking lobsters and really fancy desserts. In fact, I know this one lady who went on one of those Alaskan cruises and when she got back, she had gained ten pounds."

"Ten pounds?" she said with horror. "You can't be serious?"

Suddenly remembering that my friend is extremely weight conscious and that I had probably said the wrong thing, I quickly added, "You know, I just read somewhere that there's this new scientific study which shows that women -- particularly those of European descent like you -- are actually designed not only to store fat, but to resist losing it."

"What are you talking about?" she asked with alarm.

"Well," I said, wishing I had never brought up the subject, "it's just that I don't think you should worry too much about gaining weight on your Christmas cruise because this new study says that women are supposed to maintain at least a two to one fat-ratio to men. Plus they've proven that women have an enhanced ability to accumulate fat. You see, these scientists were dissecting these female gorillas, and underneath the furred skin, particularly around the thighs, they found this really impressive layer of fat. So they asked themselves why that should be and they came up with this new theory -- that women just aren't supposed to have thin thighs, tiny breasts, narrow hips and flat stomachs. Apparently women were given a body shape by evolution designed to store fat for lactation and hard times. Now, unlike rabbits, who average only four percent body fat because a slow rabbit is a dead rabbit, women...."

"Stop it!" she shouted.

"But all I'm saying is that it's just not fair for society to hold women to a low-fat male standard of beauty. Their bodies just haven't evolved that way."

"And just what in the world does this have to do with Christmas?" she demanded to know, giving me the distinct impression that had a Christmas ornament been available, she would have thrown it at me.

'Tis the season: for sobriety checkpoints run by West Sac police

■ Police department runs its first sobriety checkpoint of the season

West Sacramento police staged their first "sobriety checkpoint" of the fall/winter season, setting up a roadblock on West Capitol Ave. for several hours beginning at 7 p.m. on Friday.

There was at least one arrest.

At the roadblocks, cars are stopped while specially trained officers briefly question drivers in attempt to spot those who might be under the influence of alcohol or other drugs. If a driver exhibits symptoms of being intoxicated, the officers can ask him or her to take a "field sobriety test" to measure balance, coordination and other motor skills. If officers can establish through blood alcohol tests or other means that the driver is impaired, an arrest may follow.

In order not to violate drivers' legal rights, a sign warning of a checkpoint ahead is always placed far enough from the checkpoint so that drivers who do not want to visit the checkpoint may choose an alternate route.

The department has announced that they hope the checkpoints raise public awareness of the drinking/driving problem and act as a deterrent.

In local government —

A meeting of the West Sacramento Housing Advisory Commission will take place on January 6 at 6 p.m. in city council chambers, 2101 Stone Blvd., West Sacramento. Agenda items include the following:

Election of officers: chairperson and vice chairperson for 1997.

West Capitol Courtyard Consolidated.

Single Family Rehab guidelines.

Final vacant land inventory to consider a report on the Vacant Land Study.

Presentation on status of Lighthouse Marina Development.

Although there will be no public meetings of the West Sacramento City Council until Jan. 8, the council will meet in closed session at 6:30 p.m. on Jan. 2 to discuss real estate negotiations, including price and terms of payment on five city parcels.

Although the property's location could not immediately be confirmed, it appeared to match the description of land taken by the public's "eminent domain" process near the east end of West Capitol Ave.

"I pledged to him publicly that we would move ahead (with all job categories)," said McGowan.

This month brings a new set of challenges to the board as well as an unusual amount of turnover to the five-member body, which meets in Woodland several times per month.

"It's the first time in 20 or 30 years we've got three new people coming on board," he said.

Some of the challenges they expect to be dealing include expensive and touchy social service issues, as welfare programs are cut back and additional demands are placed on county general assistance programs.

"When government takes people off of S.S.I., and we have a big population on S.S.I., there's going to be a tremendous impact on the county's general assistance program -- anywhere from 'bankruptcy' to 'a serious problem.' To the extent that those services go away, these people are going to be camped on your front lawn."

'Phantom of Opera' coming to Sacto

Sacramento Light Opera Association has announced its 1997 summer lineup of shows under the Music Circus tent. Subscribers will be treated to an option of the Andrew Lloyd Webber hit musical The Phantom of the Opera.

Seats for Phantom are being held at the Sacramento Community Center Theater for Music Circus subscribers during the week of June 17-22. It has been six years since the Music Circus season had a production included at the Community Center Theater.

Music Circus continues to be Sacramento's favorite summertime tradition and the 47th anniversary season will offer shows rich in variety, with a little something for everyone.

The Phantom of the Opera opens the season in spectacular fashion. This Tony Award-winning Best Musical has dazzled audiences the world over and now it is coming to Sacramento in this exclusive engagement. SLOA is holding tickets for Music Circus subscribers as an option to their season.

The shows under the tent begin with a premiere, The Will Rogers Follies (July 7-13). Star of motion pictures, radio, and Vaudeville, Will Rogers meets the glitz and glamour of the Ziegfeld Follies in this 1991 Tony Award-winning Best Musical. Will Rogers is a song-and-dance biography never before performed under the Music Circus big top.

A light-hearted operetta, The Desert Song (July 14-20) features the stirring and haunting melodies of Sigmund Romberg. This adventurous story of Pierre, masquerading as the Red Shadow in French Morocco, has not been performed at Music Circus since 1977.

The dancing spectacular Can-Can (July 21-27) tells the story of an 1893 Parisian judge bent on banning a new high-kicking, skirt-tossing dance which he finds lascivious, only to fall for the female proprietor of a nightclub where the can-can is popular. This Cole Porter musical has not been seen under the tent since 1988.

Oliver! (July 28-August 3) will delight the entire family and continues the Music Circus tradition of offering one show each summer at half-price for children under twelve. Oliver Twist's adventures are brought to magnificent life in Lionel Bart's musical adaptation of the Charles Dicken's classic novel.

It has been twelve years since Damn Yankees (August 4-10) has stepped to the plate under the tent. Joe Hardy returns to make his deal with the devil to become the savior of the Washington Senators. Damn Yankees features such songs as "You Gotta Have Heart" and "Whatever Lola Wants."

My Fair Lady (August 11-17) will delight audiences with the story of Eliza Doolittle as she learns proper English and is transformed into a lady by the arrogant Professor Higgins. This Lerner and Loewe classic has a memorable score with such favorites as "I Could Have Danced All Night" and "Get Me To the Church on Time."

Closing out the season is an all-time favorite, Oklahoma! (August 18-24). Rodgers and Hammerstein's first collaboration is a classic that includes such unforgettable songs as "Oh, What A Beautiful Morning," "I Cain't Say No," as well as the title song.

Season tickets are available at the Music Circus Box Office, 1419 H Street, or by calling 557-1999. Prices for the full season subscription, including Phantom, range from $126.50 - $265.00, and for subscriptions without Phantom, $110.00 - $200.00, depending on night of performance and seat location. Three show mini-series will be on sale April 14 and single tickets will go on sale May 12. The Phantom of the Opera is being performed at the Sacramento Community Center Theater, 1301 L Street. All other Music Circus shows are performed at the Music Circus tent, 1419 H Street, Downtown Sacramento.

HERE IS A PLEASANT LITTLE GAME that will give you a message every day. It's a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 6 or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add 3. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left-hand corner and check one of your key numbers, left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures give you.

News-Ledger Editorial

New Year's Wishes

The changing of the year brings an opportunity for retrospect and planning.

A good New Year wish for West Sacramento would be for us all to take advantage of this opportunity and make the best of it.

Let 1997 bring a time for the community to look back at the past years, examine what we've done that has worked out well, and continue it; as well as to look at ideas and programs that haven't been successful, and which need to be changed.

All this will only work if we can promote change while staying on the high road; avoiding the trap of falling into personal battles and other pitfalls. Let's keep our eyes on the goal.

As seen from the back end of 1996, 1997 appears to be a year of modest forward movement for West Sacramento. No, there will be no great influx of shopping opportunities and the hooker trade and drug trade won't disappear from the troubled West Capital Avenue strip.

But construction will begin again on homes just as it will end on the city's first riverfront office project -- a building which will become West Sacramento's biggest employer.

Let's think a little and not be wedded to old ways of doing things that haven't worked. Let's do 1997 to the best of our collective ability, as well as to the best of our own personal abilities.

Happy New Year, West Sacramento and West Sacramentans.

Letters to the Editor

Rotary gifts

Rotary has generous spirit for the holidays.

The Second Christmas Gift Wrapping Program delivered 100 gifts to home-bound, needy senior citizens in the community.

Thanks to Raley's Corporation for the use of their store on West Capitol Avenue and all the generous people who donated gifts.

Rotary has also donated over $1100.00 to the Christmas Basket Program and $250.00 in food.

Happy Holidays, and thanks to everyone that helped.

MADD's services

Nearly everyone has heard of Mothers Against Drunk Driving. Unfortunately, however, MADD's most important work is largely unknown because the media most often focuses on our legislative activity and court monitoring.

That most important aspect of MADD's work is the help we provide to the victims of drunk driving crashes. MADD's victim advocates provide not only a shoulder to cry on, but also information and resources to help victims through their ordeal. All of these services are free.

MADD holds rigorously to the principle of not calling or approach victims ourselves. We are not ambulance chasers, and we don't push ourselves or our services on victims, but we do care and we want to help. We rely on many sources -- friends or relatives, hospitals, funeral homes, law enforcement agencies -- to let victims know we're here for them. If we learn about a drunk driving crash in the media, we do send a card, but it's always the victim family's choice to call and ask us to become involved.

MADD advocates receive a minimum of 40 hours of training and many of us have completed advanced training in areas such as cultural diversity, traumatic grief, complicated mourning, head injury and other specialized subjects. The services advocates provide include grief support through empathetic listening in person or by telephone, support groups, books and brochures that are uniquely tailored to specific types of grief -- for example we offer literature that addresses aspects of grief that apply to injured victims, parents, adult siblings, teenagers, children and men -- and information on recovering financially from a drunk driving crash.

Advocates can help with obtaining crash reports, autopsy reports, an offender's driving record and information on blood alcohol content. Another service MADD advocates provide is walking victims through the often confusing criminal justice system and helping them to be actively involved in the prosecution of the offender. This process often includes providing moral support by accompanying victims to court appearances and helping victims write letters to the judge and a victim impact statement for the court at sentencing.

Advocate success stories are legion: insurance courtroom access to disabled victims, advocating for longer and more consistent sentencing and representing the voice of the victim in every way we can.

If you are a victim of a drunk driving crash, or know someone who is, please call our State Office at (800) IAM-MADD. We care and we want to help.

Port ponderings

The outcome of the November election was in part determined by a call for change, including a cry of fear that the area in West Sacramento which is cut off from the rest by the barge canal ("Southport" is a real estate term devised to "fool" folks -- the real estate was not in West Sacramento) that it did not trust the current council to protect it from the wrong location of a new waste water treatment plant and a perceived danger to Jefferson Blvd. widening. Forgotten, it seems is the old concern that heavy industrial including the location of a paper recycling plant would be placed in the adjacent land owned by private developers and the Port. (The private lands are in the Redevelopment area.)

Recent editorials in the Bee suggest that the Port should be saved. What for? The implication is that the Port land is valuable and the use suggested is that which will bring in the most money for dredging the ship canal so that the Port could have a purpose as a real part of the transportation framework for the region.

What seems to be the real priority for all of us who live or work in West Sacramento is to take time out to review where we have been and where we can go, what are our resources, what are our needs and what NOW is the best plan for the future. This means that old and new residents, developers and business can ask the new council to await this review before making those CHANGES.

The two items that require this review -- what is the Port and what is the highest and best use of lands and facilities among the options that the Sacramento portion perceives and what is Redevelopment? Is it a misuse of a tool designed for urban renewal which has diverted the institution for municipal governance (police, fire, streets etc.) into a real estate development institution?

It will take time and commitment from us all but the alternative is giving up a dream of a good community.

Police log

Dec. 17, 7:40 p.m.

A 29-year old female resisted arrest after she was apprehended for soliciting an undercover officer for an act of prostitution, entered his car and made arrangements to drive to a location to complete the transaction. She was booked.

Dec. 22, 11:34 p.m.

An officer stopped a 39-year old Sacramento man for bicycling against traffic on Harbor Blvd. The man had containers of cold medecine hidden in his shirt, and told the officer he had found them while "dumpster diving." The officer contacted the operator at a nearby market, who said he had sold the suspect beer a few minutes earlier. The cold medecine matched stock carried at the market, and a check of records showed that some of the product was missing from the store. The man was arrested.

Dec. 27, 8:40 p.m.

A 33-year old Sacramento man was stopped at a police sobriety checkpoint operated by the West Sacramento Police Dept. He showed signs of being intoxicated and failed a field sobriety test. He told police, "I don't drink, but I did smoke some marijuana," and some of that drug was found in the man's jacket pocket. He was arrested.

Dec. 28, 2 a.m.

A 20-year old man escaped after taking two 18-packs of beer from a West Capitol Ave. market.

Dec. 28, 5:45 a.m.

A West Capitol Ave. market operator reported that he was robbed by a known suspect ten minutes earlier.

Dec. 29, 12:12 a.m.

A Franklynn Way man said he was riding his bike on West Capitol Ave. when a car with two people in it drove by and the occupants threw a soft drink with ice in it at him.

Dec. 29, 3:12 a.m.

A Michigan Blvd. woman reported that a 26-year old man had just hit her in her face, arms and hands. She was crying and had a child with her, but did not need medical attention.

Dec. 29, 4:44 a.m.

A 7th St. woman asked police to remove her boyfriend following a verbal argument. The responding officer reported that both parties refused to leave and there were no grounds to force the boyfriend out, so police "may be coming back."

Dec. 29, 6:13 a.m.

A burglary was reported at a Touchstone Pl. residence. Missing were tools, a bike, a TV, two VCRs and guns.

Dec. 29, 6:17 p.m.

A small car had hit a fire hydrant in the area of 11th and Meadow, causing flooding. The vehicle left the scene.

Dec. 29, 10:54 p.m.

On Water St., a male caller reported that his parents were fighting, and then that the caller's uncle joined the fray against the father. Police made at least one arrest.

What's New at the Library?

Happy New Year from the staff at the Turner Branch Library, 1212 Merkley Avenue. Get ready to begin your new year with Pre-School Story Time. Children from ages 3 to 5 are welcome to attend every Wednesday (10:30 a.m.) and Thursday (7 p.m.) beginning January 8 to February and from March 12 to April 17. To celebrate Dr. Martin Luther King's birthday, the staff has organized a special display of books that chronicle the life and times of this contemporary African-American leader. To honor this important figure, the library will be closed on January 20. While visiting the library, be sure to view the display of interesting and unique paper weights. The library will close at 5 p.m. on December 31 and will remain closed through January 1. Normal business hours will resume January 2, 1997. If you have questions regarding the above titles or events, please call the Turner Branch at 375-6465.

New Titles

Murder, She Meowed. Rita Mae Brown and Sneaky Pie Brown. Bantam Books. 285 pages.

Rita Mae Brown and her feline co-author, Sneaky Pie Brown, are back at work with this whodunit that tracks a killer through the wealthy and tight-knit equestrian world. Featured is the crime-solving cat Mrs. Murphy and her human companion, Mary "Harry" Haristee, post-mistress of the annual Montpelier steeplechase races. Together, these unusual crime busters try to unravel the murderer's motive -- greed, rivalry or drugs? Their only clue...a playing card driven through the dead jockey's chest.

The Black Alley. Mickey Spillane. Dutton. 334 pages.

Tough-guy private eye Mike Hammer is back as he searches for the killer of his old army buddy. His investigation draws him into a maze of danger that includes finding a missing cache carrying $89 billion, outrunning the Mafia, and outwitting federal agents. The only thing Hammer has going for him besides his .45 is Velda, his beautiful, loving and "lethal" secretary.

Charity. Len Deighton. Harper Collins. 278 pages.

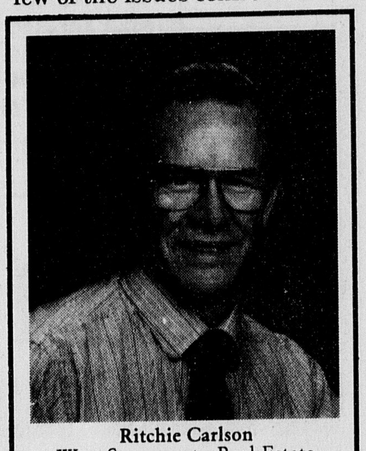

In the concluding volume of Len Deighton's trilogy which includes Faith and Hope, Bernard Samson is further confronted with clues to his sister-in-law's tragic death in Berlin, and the mysterious return of his wife from the West. The more he learns of her death, the more he is entangled into a web of intrigue and betrayal.

Viewing Violence. Madeline Levine. Doubleday. 245 pages.

Examining over four decades of research on the effects of media violence, psychologist Madeline Levine explains how children of various ages interpret violent images differently. Dr. Levine provides parents with a common sense approach to understanding the impact of violence on children and offers alternatives to popular media.

Raising Our Children's Children. Deborah Doucette-Dudman with Jeffrey R. La Cure. Fairview Press. 226 pages.

As the "family" continues to change, grandparents as parents become common. Custody battles, housing problems, and lack of social services are only a few of the issues confronted.

Seminars for parents with teens at risk of being out of control

From Yolo Family Service Agency

Allied Services for Kids (ASK) is offering a group for parents of teens who are potentially at risk for being runaway or out-of-control. Parents will have the opportunity to learn coping mechanisms for themselves when confronted with their teen's behaviors. Through a better understanding of their relationship with their teenager and in a supportive environment, parents will be helped with more effective communication skills.

This six-week series will be held at Martin Luther King High School located at 635 B Street in Davis on Tuesdays, beginning January 28 through March 4, 1997, from 5:30 to 7 p.m. There is no cost for the group series, but donations are gratefully accepted.

For more information, and to register, please call 662-2211, 375-1254, or 753-8674.
